‘LITERARY PERSPECTIVES EAST AND WEST’
Guy Amirthanayagam and Syd Harrex (eds)

Published in conjunction with the Culture Learning Institute East-West Center, Honolulu

An exciting collection of critical and creative writing exploring the connections between literary experimentation and cultural tradition in the post-colonial world. Includes prose and verse by Lee Kok Liang, Goh Poh Seng, Albert Wendt, Faiz Ahmed Faiz, John Unterecker, K. O. Arvidson, and Thomas Keneally, selections of poetry from Hawaii and India, and, amongst others, essays on Sri Lankan, Malaysian, Indian and New Zealand poetry. Excellent - and affordable - as a set text for courses on English-language writing in the Pacific region.

1980 ISBN 0 7258 0197 2 350 pp Paper RRP A$5.00

THE REGENERATIVE SPIRIT VOL. 1: Polarities of home and away, encounters and diasporas, in post-colonial literatures

Bierbaum, Nena; Harrex, Syd and Hosking, Sue (eds)

The Regenerative Spirit is an invigorating meeting ground of creative and critical voices from a culturally diverse range of regions: Australasia, the Pacific, South-east Asia, South Asia, China, Africa, America and the Caribbean. The essays demonstrate the potent relevance of literature—particularly the New Literatures in English—as we struggle to comprehend the complexities of our contemporary worlds; of such issues as indigeneity, race, cross-cultural encounters, post-colonial identities, homelands, migration, diasporas and globalisation. The book is dedicated to the memory of an outstanding pioneer in these important areas of creativity and study: Anna Rutherford.

Forthcoming review in WLWE by Bruce Clunies Ross: This book is dedicated to Anna Rutherford. The Regenerative Spirit is a phrase Anna used … and later repeated in the first issue of Kunapipi (1979) … regeneration occurs as a result of complex interactions, and movements in various directions, as it disperses, and it generally happens at points where English encounters other cultures and languages … The book in her honour regenerates her spirit. In between a cogent Preface by Sue Hosking and Syd Harrex celebrating Anna’s achievements, and an Afterword comprising a memoir by Kirpal Singh and a poem (which first appeared in Kunapipi) dedicated to Anna by Syd Harex, there are 23 essays which together trace some of the complex historical movements and interactions in literature as English dispersed around the world. The focus on the idea of ‘diaspora’, and the implied notions of ‘home’, ‘away’ and ‘encounter’ is not a device to bring together disparate essays; it opens a way forward to the study of English as a very complex literary diaspora. There is a good balance in the collection between essays of prominent critics and theorists and those of younger scholars, most of them associated with the Centre for Research in New Literatures in English at Flinders University … The collection is full of insights into the continuous remaking of literature in English through the regenerative spirit and its dark complement, destruction, and therefore a great tribute to the deep understanding which inspired the work of Anna Rutherfored, at the same time as it uses that understanding to initiate a regeneration in literary studies.

ALAS, FOR THE PELICANS! FLINDERS, BAUDIN & BEYOND

Chittleborough, Anne; Dooley, Gillian; Glover, Brenda; and Hosking, Rick (eds)

In 1802 a Frenchman and an Englishman famously encountered each other off the shores of South Australia. The voyages of discovery of Nicolas Baudin and Matthew Flinders opened the way for the increasingly rapid colonisation of ‘Terra Australis’. This collection of essays and poems celebrates the two-hundredth anniversary of the encounter, and examines some of the cultural contexts of their voyages and the ramifications of their discoveries over the ensuing years. Reflecting on his accomplishments some years after the events, Flinders himself poignantly noted that the arrival of Europeans in the waters surrounding Kangaroo Island also heralded the passing of what he romantically termed the golden age of the pelicans.

‘HOPE AND FEAR  An Anthology of South Australian Women's Writing 1894-1994’
Anne Chittleborough, Annie Greet and Susan Hosking (eds)

Prepared in celebration of the centenary of women's suffrage in South Australia, Hope and Fear is a volume of works which reflects the diversity of interests among women writers. This anthology records and celebrates a wide range of work published by women writers connected with the state, and includes work from professional writers in fields of journalism, academic and review writing, novelists, dramatists and poets, and also from writers who record private moments, memories, or celebrate occasions.

1994 ISBN 0 7258 0570 6 491 pp Paper RRP A$15.00

FERTILE GROUND An anthology of South Australian creative writing
Deves, Michael; Sexton, Maureen and Manthorpe, Peter (eds)

_Fertile Ground_ highlights the work of 22 new South Australian writers. These highly readable short stories and poems, written with freshness and verve, cover a range of topics and forms, from the traditional—to the exploratory—postmodern, street gothic, free verse. The writers met during a Flinders University creative writing course, and have worked together to see their writing through to publication.

‘MAGPIE’
Peter Goldsworthy and Brian Matthews

Clear of eye, sharp of beak and unfailing in its malicious wit, _Magpie_ charts the comic nightmare of two Anxious Men, the hapless Bennett and Barrett, both of whom fall victim to the unpredictable independence of the post-modern word. 'When I sit down at the desk I can feel my characters cringe,' Nabokov once remarked. The characters in _Magpie_ might well cringe as they are put through their hoops by two of Australia's leading writers in a novel that is part collaboration, part argument and always irreverent fun.

‘DIVERSE INHERITANCE  A Personal Perspective on Commonwealth Literature’
Yasmine Gooneratne
Professor of English and Foundation Director of the Post-Colonial Literatures and Language Research Centre, Macquarie University, Sydney
A valuable contribution to the history of the New Literatures in English. Includes early essays written in the 1960s when the concept of 'Commonwealth Literature' began to take shape and when critics in many countries were first grappling with the perplexities of defining and evaluating the new writing in English, as well as later pieces on individual works by Ruth Prawer Jhabvala, David Campbell, Douglas Stewart and Leonard Woolf. The final essays add up to a substantial history of the politics and aesthetics of the use of English in colonial Ceylon and independent Sri Lanka.

1980 ISBN 0 7258 0169 7 184 pp Paper RRP A$5.00
‘THE FLINDERS JUBILEE ANTHOLOGY’

Annie Greet and Syd Harrex (eds)

A unique collection of contemporary writing, for the most part previously unpublished, from 18 countries, with 81 contributors and paintings by prominent Australian artists. Contributors include Wole Soyinka, Keri Hulme, Lauris Edmond, C. J. Koch, Gwen Harwood, Yasmine Gooneratne, Chris Wallace-Crabbe, R. K. Narayan, Kamala Das, Lee Kok Liang, Wilson Harris, David Dabydeen and Sam Selvon.

'original and enterprising ... beautifully and wittily presented' - Mungo MacCallum in The Australian.

‘RAJ NOSTALGIA Some Literary and Critical Implications’

Annie Greet and Syd Harrex and Susan Hosking (eds)

A collection of essays which examines from a diversity of viewpoints (Indian, British, Australian) the history of 'Raj Nostalgia' in Anglo-Indian and Indian-English literature, cinema and TV. Contributors include Salman Rushdie, Nayantara Sahgal, R. K. Narayan and Robin Moore. Excellent as a set text for courses on post-colonialism.

UNDER A MEDLAR TREE

Syd Harrex
Reader in English
Flinders University

Under a Medlar Tree is the latest collection of poetry from respected Australian poet Syd Harrex. The poems, as with all Harrex’s work, are characterized by his ‘imagination, humanity, with, precision, and an assured, well-honed technique’. In the opening poem of the collection, Harrex notes of the water-colourist’s art that with painting, ‘each ink stroke or brush smudge/ is a syllable or word, a wisp of sound’, and his poems deftly mirror this ‘language of precision. In this collection are poems of warmth, humour and memory – many inspired by friends. The poems are deeply felt, and models of linguistic precision.

‘INSIDE OUT’

Syd Harrex
Reader in English
Flinders University

In his second collection of poems (his first volume, Atlantis and Other Islands, having been runner-up for the Commonwealth Poetry Prize), Syd Harrex leads the reader through a diversity of locations and situations. From the Clare Valley and Kangaroo Island of South Australia, we travel to London, Dublin and on to the tropical reaches of steamy, rain-drenched Jamaica, anthropomorphic Hawaii and south India. The range of experience, spontaneous and meditated, is complemented by a corresponding variety of form, style and tone.

‘RAHU’

Sudesh Mishra

Mishra's first collection of poems is a fresh, often exhilarating account of his exploration of his triple cultural heritage as an Indo-Fijian marvellously attuned to the subtleties and potential of the English Language.

'. . . this may be the English Language used with confidence and skill, but it certainly is not the English - or for that matter, the Australasian - voice' - Vincent O'Sullivan

1987 Paper RRP A$8.00
Published by Vision International (Fiji) Available from the CRNLE
‘TANDAVA’

Sudesh Mishra

Mishra's second volume of poetry represents his coming to terms with the 1987 military coup in Fiji and the huge set-back it signalled for hopes of a truly multicultural and multiracial future in Fiji. Often bleak and acerbic in tone and subject, the poetry nevertheless expresses an optimism in the contrasting richness of its imagery.

'superb ... satirical and passionate poems with a post-colonial bite' - Barry Hill

‘MEMOIRS OF A RELUCTANT TRAVELLER’

Sudesh Mishra

We follow Mishra's itinerary through India as he recounts incidents of the trip. A witty commentary on the tribulations of travelling, as well as an insight into a personal journey.

"... picking up both observation of India and writing of the self, especially the clash between expectation and discovery. They are clever, colourful, urbane. " - Philip Salom, Overland

1994 ISBN 1 86254 315 1 Paper RRP A$12.95

‘PREPARING FACES  Modernism and Indian Poetry in English’

Sudesh Mishra

Mishra provides a lively discussion about the cultivation of ideas between two historically diverse cultures. Analysing the poetry of Indian writers from this century, including Nissim Ezekiel, Arun Kolatkar, Keki N. Daruwalla, R. Parthasarathy, A. K. Ramanujan, Arvind Krishna Mehrotra, Adil Jussawalla, Gieve Patel, Jayanta Mahapatra and Kamala Das, Mishra discusses the importation to India of modernist ideologies by poets writing in English.
